

Ron Sexsmith, Least That I Can Do

Skies are grey for miles around
Though the sun tries hard to break through the clouds...

And while the sun is trying
The least that I can do
Is to keep on rising
And shining
My light on you

Another season's turning
And the least that I can do
Is to keep on learning
And returning
Till everything's brand new

With all the love you've given me
All the love so perfect and true
To call your arms eternity
Is the least that I can do

With all the love you've given me...

While the bells are ringing
The least that I can do
Is to keep on singing
And believing
This song will see me through

And while the birds are flying
The least that I can do
Is to keep from crying
Keep on trying
To raise my heart to you

With all the love you've given me
All the love so perfect and true
To call your arms eternity
Is the least that I can do

With all the love you've given me
All the love so perfect and true
To call your heart infinity
Is the least that I can do

With all the love you've given me
It's the least that I can do
