

Rosemary Clooney, May I Come In

(Marvin Fisher/Jack Segal)

Speaking of the devil, well here I am
May I come in
Feeling like a lost and lonely lamb
May I come in

Don't slam the door until you hear my story
Please let me stay 'til I can say I'm oh so sorry

Sorry that I ran out and lost my mind
With someone new
Foolishly I left my heart behind
It's still with you
What can I do

I'm standing on your welcome mat
But the welcome's wearing thin
Speaaking of the fool I've been
May I please come in
