Roxette, In my own way

I gathered a mountain An ocean of teardrops A castle of break-ups To hide myself in

I've waited a lifetime For someone to find me For someone to reach me Somewhere to begin

Now I'm a woman I can tell by the look in your eyes We're no strangers I can tell by the way that you smile

I've painted the sunsets
The dawnings I've missed you
The hours I've kissed you
To keep my heart alive

It's the heat of your breathing
The way you are whispering
The urge of your wanting
I can't leave you behind

Now I'm a woman I can tell by the look in your eyes We're no strangers I can tell by the waves in the night

You bring a little hope, bring a little love

I don't want to own you I don't want to lead you I just want to love you In my own way