

Rufio, Drowning

How do they know what is love what is real?
Do they feel anything when they step to the edge?
And look down to the rocks that they'll met
If they fall from their ground
See how they walk unaware of the steps
That they take in a dance on a line as the dead lose control
You will find what it means to have fallen in love

I will never hold you underneath for me
Maybe only just enough so you can breathe
Just another anchor in your life
Drowning over my life

I am afraid love is blind in a way
I do not wanna drag you along to a grave meant for me
Underneath every tree at the bottom of the lake

I will never hold you underneath for me
Maybe only just enough so you can breathe
Just another anchor in your life
Drowning over my life

You're gasping for a taste of air
With a hand I hold you down
You're crying out won't save you now
Everything will end with me

I won't hold you underneath for me
Maybe just enough so you can breathe
Take a breath to save your life
Drowning over my:

I will never hold you underneath for me
Maybe only just enough so you can breathe
Just another anchor in your life
Drowning over my life

I won't hold you underneath for me
(I will just bring you down)
Maybe just enough so you can breathe
(Nothing can sink me down)
Just an anchor in your life
Drowning over my life
