

Rule Of Rose, A Love Suicide

Say

Where is my shame
When I call your name?
So, please don't set me free
I'm as heavy as can be
I will do you harm
I will break my arm
I am a victim of your charms

I want to be dead
When I'm in bed
I can be so mean
You can beat me
I would like to shame you
I would like to blame you
Just because of my love to you

And

Love itself is just as innocent as roses in May
I know nothing can drive it away
Though
Love itself is just as brief as a candle in the wind
But it's greedy just like sin

Alone but sane
I am a love suicide

'Cause

Love itself is just as brief as a candle in the wind
It is pure white just like sin

Alone but sane
I am a love suicide

'Cause

Love itself is just as innocent as roses in May
It is pure white just like sin
