

Ryan Keen, Skin And Bones

Fear not, what you don't know,
Coz in your heart you'll find a home,
And we're not, no we're not just skin and bones.
Strength found when you're on your own,
Will manifest, and let you grow,
And we're not, no we're not just skin and bones.
It's in the air that we'll breathe tonight,
A darker place has more room for light my friend,
You can start again.
Show kindness in the harder times,

You're not alone just read between the lines,
You'll be on my mind

We're not just skin and bones,
Surrounded by the cold,
We aren't the only ones wanting more.
So ignore the blood and gold,
There's a fire in your soul,
We aren't the only ones.

Strong hearts fight troubled soul,
And all the greed will turn you cold,
But there's more, so much more than blood and gold.
It's not fair in love and war,
I still don't know what we're fighting for,
But there's more, so much more than blood and gold.

We're not just skin and bones,
Surrounded by the cold,
We aren't the only ones wanting more.
So ignore the blood and gold,
There's a fire in your soul,
We aren't the only ones.
