

Samiam, Stained Glass

From behind a stained glass window, a colorful blur is all that I see.

A shattered view of the world, a shattered view of me.

The truth is hidden by shadows, my ideas are not complete, facts are lost to feeling.

Time trips and slides, but I not dreaming.

Maybe that why I got the wrong impression of you.

Maybe that why I got the wrong impression of you.