

Sara Evans, My Ignorance

Last night as i slept i saw my life slip away.

Then you were next to me.

I couldn't see you face but i knew that it was you.

Giving me a second chance.

I"ll never really understand why i cannot comprehend your love and grace. Why do i take pride in what i can't control. How can i claim what isn't really mine? what's the point to my ignorance?

The music that i see. The colors in the air. The breath in my lungs tonight. Why do i fight with you sometimes? So today i walked down this road again. I understand nowm some of what you said.

Sometimes I lack the strength I need. BUt you come through, every time i fail you're there to pick me up, when i need it most.

When i've fallen hard you're there no questions asked.

You lift me up when I am down. Please open my eyes.

Help my understand.