Sarah McLachlan, Wintersong

The lake is frozen over The trees are white with snow And all around Reminders of you Are everywhere I go

It's late and morning's in no hurry But sleep won't set me free I lie awake and try to recall How your body felt beside me When silence gets too hard to handle And the night too long

And this is how I see you In the snow on Christmas morning Love and happiness surround you As you throw your arms up to the sky I keep this moment by and by

Oh I miss you now, my love Merry Christmas, merry Christmas, Merry Christmas, my love

Sense of joy fills the air And I daydream and I stare Up at the tree and I see Your star up there

And this is how I see you In the snow on Christmas morning Love and happiness surround you As you throw your arms up to the sky I keep this moment by and by