

Scissor Sisters, Almost Sorry

if anyone was headed for the gates of hell i knew you'd be first i used to picture your obituary and i wished you the worst the danger of the playground the radio said you drowned and i'm sorry almost
almost sorry

no sympathy is given to the perpetrator charged with the crime im willing to admit that it feels good to be a victim sometimes and i wont ever get to thank you for the terrible things you said
'cause i'm sorry
almost
that you're dead to the world where i hoped you would be never imagined you'd live on in me you gave me destination but i paid for the ride the place you punched my ticket left a crater inside where i cried (he cried) where i cried (you died) where i cried from the bruises learned to live with the scars now you live in the mirror when i look there you are you're the shadow on the faces of the ppl i meet have you claimed eternal shotgun in my passenger seat well i'm sorry

almost
almost sorry

sometimes the best design is done by damage the accident can cease the rainbow still looks pretty when it bleeds