Scott Walker, You're Young And You'll Forget

I know that it will make you cry To find that I have gone Didn't even say goodbye Ya hate me for a while Because I promised love And left you just for bread

But I know that I could never be The kind of a man that you Have in your mind of me For your sake we must part And it will break your heart

But you're young and you'll forget

You're young, and I know time will help you find The perfect man to really love you And not a man like me who's like the wind and must be free But a man who's worthy of you

For I could never settle down Just one way of life One woman and one time So sad to part this way But you'Il be glad one day

'Cause you're young and you'll forget

And not a man like me who's like the wind and must be free But a man who's worthy of you

For I could never settle down To just one way of life One woman and one time So sad to part this way But you'Il be glad one day

'Cause you're young and you'll forget
