Seabear, Hospital Bed

We spread our blankets over the lake A bee died in my arm, I tried to leave but You held my arms and head in the lake

So, I grab on and hold to the spider's neck And ride out of town Because I'm sick and the days are long

I tried, and I tried to squeeze The blue out of the sky The yellow out of the sun

From that big invisible boulder You keep on your shoulders With time we'll make it into sand A grain you keep in your head

Like a rabbit in a human skin coat You'll dance on the yard Like a wolf with a good-bye note You'll howl at the sky

So, show your cat teeth to the lion And grab unto his mane
