

Search The City, The Holiday Song

A year's gone by since these streets were covered in white
Have you ever thought of me since that cold winter night?

My hands are shaking as I reach out for yours
Am I holding onto something I've already lost?
How did we get here?
Why did it turn out this way?
After all the years we threw away

And you're alone this Christmas Eve
I hope it burns every time you think of me
I start a fire, try to forget you
I hope you're locked up in your room
Forgetting about me

We light a candle to put in the window

A year's gone by since these streets were covered in white
Have you ever thought of me since that cold winter night?
And I hope it hurt for you half as much as it's hurt for me
I've never made you promises I didn't mean to keep

And it's the 25th of December
And I remember the times
The times I felt alive (didn't you feel alive?)
We paint on all of our smiles (all of our smiles)
And pretend that I'll see you tomorrow

But I was never good enough for you

A year's gone by since these streets were covered in white
Have you ever thought of me since that cold winter night?
And I hope it hurt for you half as much as it's hurt for me
I've never made you promises I didn't mean to keep

But it's cold outside
And these feelings have been dying for you
But I am stuck inside
With the evidence of us that you left behind

A year's gone by since these streets were covered in white
Have you ever thought of me since that cold winter night?
And I hope it hurt for you half as much as it's hurt for me
I've never made you promises I didn't mean to keep
