Secret Garden, Half A World Away

You're half a world away Standing next to me It seems that everyday I'm losing you almost invisibly Though you are near I can't reach that far Across to where you are And so you stay.... Just half a world away

And I would cross The universe for you What good would it do If you weren't even there?

Tall you return Until your way is clear I will be here..... Not half a world away

You're half a world away And no one is there to blame If love outlives its day And turns into an ember from a flame I love you as before Till worlds will be no more Till I can find a way To where you stay Just half a world away