

Shane Alexander, Where Were You

In a moment, in a lifetime
Everything can change
The past just falls backwards, and the road turns strange
I wonder to myself, when my time came
Where were you?
Where were you?

When the die cast, when the road split
Like an old dead tree.
I was washed out, I was faded
No one came for me
And I saw my reflection, watched myself bleed
Where were you?
Where were you?

When I fell so hard, like I always do
When I tried your number, still the spell I'm under
Found no one no, had to just move on
Where were you?

Do you remember the boardwalk night
The sand in our hand, the fourth of July

In the distance there's a graveyard
With an unmarked grave
Filled with laughter, with loving
All the joy you gave.
No one came calling, no flowers laid
Where were you?
Where were you?

When I fell so hard, like I always do
When I tried your number, still the spell I'm under
Found no one no, had to just move on
Where were you?
