Shane Barnard, Everything's Fine

i walk today through these halls pretending that i'm always fine i can hide with the mask i wear the chaos that is lurking deep inside everything is fine or so i say to me, myself and i am so disguised by life i am another fallen angel fallen into ranks again in my fray i cannot reason with my mind

You know i lie this mask i wear transparent in the sight of the Divine i hide behind this see-through lie that i am fine come back another time and i'm inclined forgive me Lord to cover up what's going on inside but i comply that You are Lord that i am weak and i'm doing fine