

Shane Barnard, Julie

all i know of you, my fragile precious "jewel," bright and shining a heart that glows with love, a heart that's been stood up a broken heart that breaks my own there you are, out of breath, a need for water to quench your thirst all that way, on that road to find out your way home a holy, painful trend, He has to break the bread before dining so come just as you are, with your wounded heart and feast eternal!

please hear my heart tonite, as i put it on this page your life is too important for me to throw away just know His ways are perfect in all He's ever done so open up your heart of love to Love and overcome
