Shawn Colvin, The Night Will Never Stay

Life will never stay The live will still come by And half a million stars You pin it to the sky And though you bind it with the blowing wind And buckle it with the moon But the night will slip away Like sorrow or a tomb Life will never stay The live will still come by And half a million stars You pin it to the sky And though you bind it with the blowing wind And buckle it with the moon But the night will slip away Like sorrow or a tomb The life is over with The stars will turn