

Shelly Poole, Hope

Turn your face away from me you know I don't think I can stand to see you crying
Well you made my heart a stranger on these roads
You got me more than you will ever know

Well I swear I never felt this fire burn so low inside me I am dying here
All I ever asked from you was just one thing
But somewhere in the bargain I lost everything
But still the river of love runs so wide

So wide
Oh this time you really hurt me
I never meant to break your heart
But this time you really hurt me
I never meant to break your heart
So wide
But this time it really hurts
I never thought id play the part of the man who broke your heart

Well I knew this storm was coming yeah I could feel it on your lips when you kissed me
Oh you always read me like an open book
If only leaving you was all it took to get you off my mind but still this river of love runs so wide
So wide...

I never thought id play the part of the man who broke your heart
You should have kept it in close to you but now it's gone...

So wide
You know you really broke my heart
I'm begging you to take me back again
But you really broke my heart
I'm begging you to try and take me back again

You really broke my heart...