

Signs Of Betrayal, Torn Down

The breath of you is burning through the skin
And all you do is lingering within
You have become the drug that makes me weak
You're just too numb to chance my honesty
Is truth too much to bare?
Does the past make you afraid?
In a perfect world you're there
To make things okay
You tore me down then walked away
And could you see it's killing me?
So hard I try to hide my cries
And could you see it's killing me?
I can't pretend perfections not in me
I should have guessed you wanted to believe
The words I said you threw them all away
You tore me down then walked away
And could you see it's killing me?
So hard I try to hide my cries
And could you see it's killing me?
I'm holding on
You can't be gone
The thought of it is terrifying
I'm all alone
These wretched walls
Reminding me that we can't be
You tore me down then walked away
And could you see it's killing me?
So hard I try to hide my cries
And could you see it's killing me?