

Silence Is Sexy, Where Were You

Why don't you tell us
Is it better to hold on
Than to hold on to what we had?
Once we had a dream
We all tried tried to make the best
Of what we tried hard to forget
On and on we run
Looking for cover
And something real to cling on to

Where were you?
Why do you stand so far off in times of need?
Let us please set our hearts
On something that we can believe

You saw everything
Kept us waiting
Show us the empty parts that much need to be filled
Why don't you tell us
Who will lead us
To the place where we were meant to lay our hearts

Where were you?
Why do you stand so far off in times of need?
Let us please set our hearts
On something that we can believe
