

Silverstein, Discovering The Waterfront

I will promise myself I won't care distracting myself from your stare and I've seen this mistake once before with your games I will never fall for I've hung up my guns
I won't kill again

I won't forget you (I won't forget you)
I'm not gonna let you win (I'm not gonna...)
but I'm tired of lying tired of fighting you
and it's not gonna change

You ask for my heart you know that I'm down but not the way you lie to me, you tear it all apart and beg for me to stay I've sailed off to sea (sailed off to sea),
I'm not coming back

I won't forget you (I won't forget you)
I'm not gonna let you win (I'm not gonna...)
but I'm tired of lying
tired of fighting you
and it's not gonna change

Counting down
Make that sound
And you know it makes no sense
Counting down
Till you mess around
And I know you can't ever change
When I'm trembling, Thrown overboard
And I'm ready to relive the past
Counting down
Make that sound
Break the silence

Pretend it's not forever,
I'll pull myself together
I'll say that I'll forget her, I'll breathe.
And I'll say she never hurt me,
And look at it as learning,
And laugh about the good and the bad.
Because I won't live forever
We don't belong together,
I know I'll feel better,
One day when I can make it through.

I'm not gonna let you win (I'm not gonna...)
but I'm tired of lying

I won't forget you (Counting down...)
I'm not gonna let you win (Counting down...)
but I'm tired of lying
