Sinead O'Connor, Old lady

When I'm an old lady I'm gonna be his baby I'm gonna wrap myself around him And then I'm gonna kiss him

But that's a way down the line You see for now he isn't mine But I don't mind waiting And the longing's not aching

Cause I know
One day he'll say: "That's my girl"
The happiest words in the world
Make me laugh like an idiot
Not be so serious

For now when I'm around him I act like I don't care for him I even act like I don't like him Ignore him, to spite him

But only so that I won't smile at him For everyone would know I love him And that's so uncool Cuz it's messing with all the rules

And I know
One day he'll say: "That's my girl"
The happiest words in the world
Make me laugh like an idiot
Not be so serious
