Slowride, Four Eyes

weaping willow tired and dying arms hang heavy wet with rain it's days like this one that get me thinking about how good its never been and at once everything was clear what i'm doing here and everything that's me when i saw you standing and without speaking you told me that you'd love me forever is this my life in this picture or is there something i have missed empty cobwebs in my corners even spiders can't live like this and at one everything was clear what i'm doing here and everything i am when i saw you standing and without speaking you told me that you'd love me forever with your eyes in the same instance insane as it seems i knew it was good right away all that it took was a glance from your eyes