

Sophia, Pace

We sleep all day
And wonder where our lives have gone
Sneak into the night
And hope the lack of light will hide our flaws

Well we can bitch and we can moan
And we can curse the days we're born

Or we can scream and we can shout
And cast away the fear and doubt
That turns everything
Sour

But we can't change the pace the world spins around us
We can't change the pace the world spins around us

We break our backs and made to smile
Force-fed shit all hype and style
And like lonely bus stop women said
'Without poetry it's like we're dead'

Well we can bitch and we can moan
And all get sick with stress and existential dread
Or we can scream and we can shout
And cast the fear and doubt
That turns everything
Sour

But we can't change the pace the world spins around us
We can't change the pace the world spins around us