

Sophia, Where Are You Now

It's 5 a.m.
And I stumble down Oxford Street
The whiskey and gin
They ain't helping things
If I could speak
I'd call out your name
And if I could walk
I'd run back to you again

But where are you now
Oh where are you now

Well I've loved and left
And I've kissed and fled
I've left my heart where I should have stayed instead
And you think that I've forgotten
But you will always be near
In every face that I see
And every voice that I hear

Oh where are you now
Oh where are you now

And I heard that you found Jesus
And he helped erase your life
Well I'm glad you found the solace
That I could never provide
And what about the candles that kept the church alight
And what about the prayers you said
Would keep me warm at night

Oh where are you now
Oh where are you now
