

Sophie Barker, Angels

She laughs when she wants to cry
She smiles but she doesn't know
Why the world takes it's toll on her

I try and talk some sense to you
But only you can help yourself to Understand what's going on

Angels don't come here often
Angels don't usually soften the fall

Do you think you can help me
Do you think I'll find some freedom
Do you think life's just one big struggle
Or are there little angels looking after me

You fill your days with triviality hoping
That it's just what you want to be
But the truth keeps circling you

Just take a jump you maybe the fool
But I guarantee the empress looks after you
She'll never let you fall apart

Angels do come here often
Angels do usually soften the fall

Yes I think I can help you
Yes I know you'll find some freedom
Yes I think life's just one big struggle
But there are many angels looking after you

Yes I think I can help you
Yes I know you'll find some freedom
Yes I think life's just one big struggle
But there are many angels looking after you
Looking after you, looking after you
Looking after you

Angels
Angels
Looking after
Looking after you
Angels
