

Sophie Zelmani, Precious Burden

the life we shared together is no life anymore it's time to place the memories and put them wherever they can grow so you live in the stars now you live in the meads I'll spread you with my heart over the fertile fields the love we gave each other was the love that we would make those years became a lifetime a lifetime fate would break now you're living in the oceans in the trees, in the air it's a precious burden the cross that come to bear this burden is a precious burden as precious as you brought into my world

the world that's up to you