

Spineshank, Malnutrition

Dismiss your true state of mind
'Cause it's too hard to be
Convince yourself it's a lie
The guilt you do achieve
Failure disguised your choice
You need another voice
Regrets confirmed your faults
I need another voice

You're too far gone

Disengage yourself to replace yourself
Look right through yourself and deny yourself

Guilt, it's in your voice, it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished

The contradictions you live
Have cancelled out the truth
The desperation you show
Is just the focal point
Nothing more than image
You need another voice
Your faults became regret
I need another choice

You're too far gone

Realign yourself to escape yourself
See right through yourself, give up on yourself

Guilt, it's in your voice, it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished

Come on!

Guilt, it's in your voice, it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished

Guilt, it's in your voice, it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished