

Sprung Monkey, Super Breakdown

Waking to an early morning
Caffine to ignite the brain
It seems that life is going nowhere, growing colder everyday
Well I've almost reached the point of saturation
Just soak it up
All those tears of yesterday now

Well don't you know that you could be anything
And don't you know that you could be anyone
And don't you know that it keeps happening
Until you step up and step out and realize
That you're the only one
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown

Fallen angels gather all around me
They're talking to me
And I believed all they had to say now
And all those days that once adored me
So very trusting
Well it seems those days have gone away from me

Well don't you know you could be anything
And don't you know that you could be anyone
And don't you know that it keeps happening
Until you step out and step up and realize
That your the only one
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown

And fly away
From your super broken super breakdown
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown
Fly away
From your super broken super breakdown