

Stephen Bishop, She's Not Mine

The light has faded in the blue room where love has strayed
And in the colors of her darkness she turns away from the kind of hurt that tears your heart to pieces
'Till you say goodbye
Well I don't see her anymore It's for the best, I guess and I don't see her anymore
So I kill time thinking that she's not mine The moon has stolen all the memories from my brain
So I watch the people on my TV to hide my pain and sometimes I can't imagine life without her.. and sometimes I can
But I don't see her anymore time will tell
When I can wish her well
I don't see her anymore But I get by knowing that she's not mine Like a mountain that stands so high her tears mean nothing to me 'Cause I'm too blue to cry and someday all I do is think about her yeah, but I don't see her anymore It's for the best, I guess
and I don't see her anymore
and Life goes by knowing that she's not mine...
(Written by Stephen Bishop)