Stephen Bishop, Something New In My Life

i guess i wanted something new in my life a new key to fit a new door to wake and see a different view in my life the one i've been waiting for dreams like everyone i've had a few in my life who knew that this one would come true in my lfe i knew the moment when you touched me you touched me you're like a sudden breeze that blew in my life a new face, a new smile, new song and now i know i wanted you in my life all along i guess, i must have saved an empty place in my heart for you to come and fill this space in my heart that long before i said i loved you i love you whatever happens this is true in my life when all the springs have come and gone whatever dance i made or do in my life whatever else that i may do in my life you'll always be something new in my life from now on i know there always will be you in my life from now on... yeah...yeah....yeah....
