Sting, Almost There

As their wings go dark - up against the sun And their shadows pass - over everyone And time unfolds - to a beating drum

I throw my clothes on a burning chair I paint my eyes with the cold night air The dreamer shouts - to an empty room

And the sun will shine And the rain will pour We radiate for evermore And the world will turn

Falling rain In the end There's a silence

And the TV set doesn't show the fall The light is fast the world is small And in the end there's a silence

And the sun will shine And the rain will pour We radiate for evermore And the world will turn
