

Story Of The Year, Page Avenue

&quot;I still recall / every summer night / like it was yesterday.
The time could never end / and my friends were family.
Nothing mattered more / then the loyalty we had.
Now I'm a world away from everything we shared.

I had something better waiting ahead.
I try to take control of my heart.
I had something better,
But i'll tear it down and I'll tape it up by my own design.
I fall.

Bring back the days.
Three story parking lot.
The air is never dry.
As the city falls asleep / days bleed into the night.
The table set the stage / for a life of memories,
But I'm a world away from everything.

I fall apart as time passes by.
I fall apart but the memories never die.

I still recall every summer night.
It seems like yesterday,
But I'm still a world away.&quot;
