

Strangelove, All Because Of You

I'm a minstrel strolling through your garden
There's a place I ran free as a child
There's my face of innocent reflection
Living in the water and the sound
I will play my music while you're sleeping
You will wake and take me by the hand
I will wonder of this moment sometime later
Frozen by the change inside my head
And all because of you
I can sing or stare across the ocean
Shout a cry beneath the various sky
Walk around in circles 'til I'm dying
Make the shapes accustom while I hide
But all of which I felt was of a meaning
Colours that would fascinate each time
The songs that kept me living in a strange world
No longer hold a radiance in my eyes
And all because of you
