Subliritum, The Narrow Path

Darkage come forth, the time has come The shadows have fallen, cold light that I adore Black lights evil flashing eyes search inside The night never ending we live on the darkside So when the hammer falls A great thunder crack the skies The blood will float, is this the last day on earth But now the winds are blowing cold, blowing cold in our soul The world is turning, our souls asre burning in times close to war Hear the mourning hear the screams of sorrow But ignore the suffering insanity brings in times of war And, I wonder is this the beginning of the end of the end of the beginning? The war approaches, these is only darkness in my eyes A scary existence this is, this tormenting felling make us win If you got the power if you got the strength you will force your enemies down to the ground Evil lucks in the corner, in the mist and the shadows Fear and hate overwhelming on this narrow path towards the final battle You can see the signs on the nightsky, turning red filled with the cries from the fallen ones Through pain and suffering thou will find salvation the truth lies within; self-destructive evil complication The war comes closer our reality is drifting apart The world turns we see our enemies burn A path so narrow we follow, the truth is harsh to swallow Is it our destiny, is it what waits for you and me? We walk towards the battlefield The brave men are awaiting their last fight With tormenting weapons they hold Ready strike, set to kill so behold Beware and prepare, conquer and fight and they'll see the morning to come But know that the stars on the sky won't ever shine so bright anymore