

Susan Ashton, Shot For The Moon

Love has a way of making you stumble
Making you fumble for the right words to say
You try to get up up for the challenge
Then you lose your balance and your knees give away

Oh I shot for the moon and I missed by a mile
Or maybe a light year or two
Oh but somewhere tonight a star is falling
Falling just for you

What would I give to do the right thing
To do the smart thing just one time
Love has a way of making you dream
Oh and I'd do anything just to make you mine

So I shot for the moon...
Falling falling falling just for you
[guitar]
Love has a way of making you stumble
Making you humble what do you say
