

Sylver, In Your Eyes

I can still remember, long ago
Living in the fast lane, never slow
And nothing that could come between me and you
I still hear the words I thought were cheap
You should always look before you leap
And I never realised those words were oh so true
I hope that you can hear me
Though you're living in another world
Throwing shadows upon earth
In your eyes, I could drown and still survive
In your eyes, I could see how to live my life
But if only I knew
That chances were few
Maybe I would still be with you, my baby
Several thoughts I can't define
Living on a dream, seems like a crime
But every now and then it's hard to ignore
Cause only in my dreams I find a clue
When I try to build a memory of you
I know our love will be much stronger than before
I hope that you can hear me
Though you're living in another world
Throwing shadows upon earth
In your eyes, I could drown and still survive
In your eyes, I could see how to live my life
But if only I knew
That chances were few
Maybe I would still be with you, my baby
I hope that you can hear me
Though you're living in another world
Throwing shadows upon earth
In your eyes, I could drown and still survive
In your eyes, I could see how to live my life
But if only I knew
That chances were few
Maybe I would still be with you, my baby
In your eyes, I could drown and still survive
In your eyes, I could see how to live my life
But if only I knew
That chances were few
Maybe I would still be with you, my baby