

System Syn, Would Have Killed

and you know what I know why would you think to do this to me a reason so simple you could never dream the answer if we're so different from ourselves could I have seen this inner you and touched its face for ever a brief moment and standing back, now so detached from you I realize why you didn't want me there

I would have killed if just this one time time was on our side and even when we walk away you would have cared that I tried and I had so much left to tell you so many pieces left to place but now the puzzle fell apart to just the shadow of your face

I would have killed for the last chance would have bled a thousand miles through the thorns that line the path just to kneel beside you as you were collapsing and holding both hands I could say I was still there it's killing me
but I'm still here