

The Cranberries, I don't need

The world is consuming me
And I don't feel so happy here today
I'm numb and I don't feel and
I used to be a baby in my day
So where is the one you loved?
Did she hold you happy next to her?
And your head hangs lightly
And everyone's slightly drunk tonight
They're drunk tonight again
I Don't need to see you, no not now
I Don't need to see you, no not now
My head is hanging now and
My eyes are on the ground, the ground, the ground
And everyone's so patronising
I don't see when the real things comes around
So where is your mother now
Did she hold you happy next to her
And your head hangs lightly
And everyone's slightly drunk tonight
They're drunk tonight again
I Don't need to see you, no not now
I Don't need to see you, no not now
And maybe no work done today, no work done today. No. No. No.
No work done today. No. No. No. No, work done today.
