The Cure, More Than This

For a second of your life Tell me that it's true Waiting for a sign It's all I want of you Your heart hides a secret A promise of what is Something more than this

Just a second of your time Anyone will do A taste of any other Is all I want from you Offer me the world And how can I resist Something more than this

Make believe in magic Make believe in dreams Make believe impossible Nothing as it seems See, touch, taste, smell, hear But never know if it's real (Never know if it's real)

For a second of your life Tell me if it's true Anywhere we are It's all I want of you your lips lies a secret A promise of a kiss Of something more than this

Just a second of your time Anyone will do To know any other Is all I want from you Giving me the world Now I can't resist Something more than this

Make believe in magic Make believe in dreams Make believe impossible Nothing as it seems Never really understand What anything means (What anything means)

Another second of my life Not knowing if it's true Make believe in nothing Is all I want of you Whisper me a secret Whisper me there is Always something other Something more than this
