The Cyan Velvet Project, The Chant

strange frequents that are my feelings visualise a reflection of the whole kind an absolute dark where torsos crawl like larvas begging for forgiveness in the haze of midnight sun dead tired on the bottom of the riverbed we're longing for the moon and now with humble hearts we ask did we end up to be so perfect by the achievements of our time? higher intelligence lost its way to communicate noises are now the homage to human tragedy look how the seek the information on the same level of conciousness