

The Fratellis, Impostors (Little By Little)

You wear your mask, I'll wear mine
They don't come cheap, but they fit just fine
You can be her and I can be him
We can both sink when the rest don't swim

Little by little by little by little by little by little by little
Little by little by little by little by little by all day long

We can pretend that our fates are entwined
The beautiful lies the beautiful kind
Everybody knows that the sun still sets
And everybody gives and everybody gets

Little by little by little by little by little by little by little
Little by little by little by little by little by all day long
Little by little by little by little by little by little by little
Little by little by little by little by little by all day long

I can be the one that you just can't shake
Till you swear that your eyes go blind
We can disappear till the sun burns a hole
In the life that we left behind

And I just won't stop till my heart gives way
And you and I are a long lost myth
There's nothing very much that you wouldn't do
To be the last of the men that you romanced with
The last of the men that you romanced with

Little by little by little by little by little by little by little
Little by little by little by little by little by all day long
Little by little by little by little by little by little by little
Little by little by little by little by little by all day long

You wear your mask I'll wear mine
They don't come cheap but they fit just fine
We can pretend that our fates are entwined
The beautiful lies the beautiful kind
