

The Geraldine Fibbers, California Tuffy

A ball of light comes down to bite me on the ass the legs, the breasts, I'm falling from my nest my earth, my pride, are laughing from inside
My eyes are closed, and I'm dripping like a rose.

A nickel, a dime, you find still rolling on the ground
You found a pearl in a strange and tangled girl
You laid her down and her face screwed up your mind
It's all a dream that is bursting at the seams.

In tortoise, in shell, in hell, you'll find me on my back
I crack, once more
Yes I am just a tart, a heart on stilts
Pick the flower and it will wilt
To die in bliss
For a greedy lover's kiss

Old palm trees sway in the breeze
Lick my lips
I'll be alone forever
You will never get my heart
