The Pierces, It Was You

Well, I've been lying here All alone Wondering if you are Ever coming home I left on the light By the bed In case, you could come to call What is wrong with me? I said, to myself

I never really thought It would last And here I am now Fading fast But I will not sleep tonight No, I could not sleep tonight

Where would you go? What would you do? If it wasn't me, it was you Where would you go? And what would you do? If it wasn't me, it was you If it wasn't me, it was you

If only you could feel My heart race And see the light On my face Then you would know the truth And I would know the truth Then maybe you don't like What I brought Well maybe I am not What you thought But don't worry You are not What I thought you were either

Where would you go? What would you do? If it wasn't me, it was you Where would you go? And what would you do? If it wasn't me, it was you If it wasn't me, it was you

No matter how hard it gets No matter how thick your head is There's always something More to learn Even if you just want to quit

Where would you go? And what would you do? If it wasn't me, it was you Where would you go? And what would you do? Where would you go? And what would you go? And what would you do? Where would you go? And what would you do? If it wasn't me, it was you (x3)
