

The Roots, Writters Block

[Black Thought]

Oooh

Up, up.. up, up.. Up, Up

Up, Up.. UP, UP UP UP!!

UP!! UP!! UP!!

UP I, UP I, UP I step, UP I walk

UP I climb, to the platform on which I await the arrival of the, black liliine

2000 the abstract nighttrain that should be arriving in approximately eight complete lifetimes

Do you dig that, ON, track number one or is it my one track mind?

With the same two hundred funky people packed together on one car that seats sixty

Reminiscent of the Middle Passage only now we, gliiide over oceans of steel, and at the speed of light from the window, in my eye, I can't see

Damn! Brother, excuse me brother

Would you mind not dripping your umbrella into my lap?

Now where was I? What, change to spare?

Man you better change your mind, change your plan change your attitude, change your ideas to change your position

As I change my seat, and I change the channel on my WatchMan

Just in time, special guest, The Roots, on the SOULLLLL TRAIN!

John Coltrane and chinese food is my date for the night with that woman, with that girl, with that woman with that lady, with that woman, with that child child I'm honey, honey-child, and I gots ta gotta, gots ta, gotta gots ta, gots ta gotta gotta get ready

Ready ready to go, read-read to go

Going, going, going, going, going, going, GONE

DAMN! ...

I missed my stop.. Writters Block, hah!