

The Streets, Strongest Person I Know

One of the first things about you I did see
Is that you verse your views quietly
When nature verses truths I get violent feelings
But softly time will reply that's wise
A delicate gesture of why you see
The best route through this being right through here
But met with a cute blind snide of fear
Best to go along with their idea
But, you gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
You gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
After taking the worst route, blatantly
Bang on cue we manage losing way
But in a squirmy backed and screwed up way
They actually managed passing you the blame
With that mad man wrapped with rage
Even then your temper stays exactly the same
And in that manner is the manner you stay
Beautiful person that's happily unchanged
You gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
You gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
In the heat of speech
Your words improve
Right out of reach in my stirred up words
But every time they fking blurt out drool
I'm noticing they're all learning from you
Cos even though they know they cursed you
They should've admitted that they were fools
The next time they're wanting to work things through
The very first person they turn to is you
Cos you gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
You gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
You gently take things slowly
You softly bowl them over
That's the delicate way you've shown me
You're the strongest person I know
