Thea Gilmore, Old Soul

Well, I'm looking for an old soul Where am I gonna go? I'm looking for an old soul Does anybody know? I don't want the worldly wise I don't want a good disguise Just looking for an old soul

And I'm looking for a white light Where am I gonna go? And I'm looking for a white light Does anybody know? Don't want the shooting stars Don't want the passing cars Just looking for a white light

Cause when the days grow old And the nights get cold I'll need a young heart But an old soul

And I'm looking for the right song Where am I gonna go? I'm looking for the right song Does anybody know? Don't want to hear the blues Don't want some wild chanteuse Just looking for the right song

Cause when the days grow old And the nights get cold I'll need a young heart But an old soul

Where am I gonna go? I'm looking for an old soul Does anybody know? Its gotta be flesh and bone The sweetest idea of home It's gotta be an old soul It's gotta be an old soul It's gotta be an old soul
