

This Is A Standoff, An Admission

All you said was an admission that made me realize
All that's left is some books the detailed what we have
But that's not the same now is it
I could have asked you a thousand times but reprimand's unfair
We're eradicating life where honest species one stood there
Always knew the only weapons were the logic we once knew
It's the time to put aside our arms and take up things we can undo
Villages are squeezed dry as the cities increase size
Where will all the world's food supply be synthesized
We're digesting lies just took to it
I could have asked you a thousand times but reprimand's unfair
We're eradicating life where honest species one stood there
Always knew the only weapons were the logic we once knew
It's the time to put aside our arms and take up things we can undo
I could have asked you a thousand times but reprimand's unfair
We're eradicating life where honest species one stood there
Always knew the only weapons were the logic we once knew
It's the time to put aside our arms and take up things we can undo