

Thumb, Consumer's Rap-Sody

when was the last time you made your own decision, free from whatever distracts you from your vision? you turn on the telly, you open the papers, you're being ruled by big money-scrapers, who's sole intention is to but the message is so much deeper, than to change your look or who you are. it's a corporate game of backstab, make money, be violent, drive a car, screw everybody else or you won't get far. take our you sell through commercials as far as i can see, whatever happened to a word like quality. a colour inside of me and inside of you, that policy is always there too ! it's what you think and it's what it's v
